Enhancement Program Virtual School

A Child Can Naturally Acquire a Second Language!

HISTORY

In the year 1965 in Buenos Aires province, Argentina, Miriam Viggiani produced a television program for children called "Chiquilandia" which was centered on education. Chiquilandia was created "to teach children in a fun way, so that they can enjoy and internalize each moment and each experience."

This same standard led Chiquilandia to broaden its horizons and become a "Children's Language School." The school began teaching secondary languages such as: Spanish, English, French, Italian, Portuguese and other languages. Chiquilandia has taught children as young as six months of age.

After enjoying much success in Argentina with seven language schools and laboratories, Chiquilandia moved to the United States in 1978 and has been able to provide a very successful language program until today.

The most appropriate and beneficial period in which a child learns a foreign language is during their first five years of life.

"During these years, the developing brain unconsciously tracks the sounds and contours of the languages that surround them, noting the patterns and the subtle differences between sounds. This is an ideal time to introduce foreign languages to kids and to encourage cross-linguistic learning."

Dr. April Benasich, Director of the Infancy Studies Laboratory at the Center for Molecular & Behavioral Neuroscience, Rutgers University

A child:

- ▷ is naturally born with a hunger to learn
- ▷ understands and is able to learn up to five languages simultaneously
- ▷ finds the new language useful when it is fun for him/her

"Once kids turn six their brains become much less receptive to foreign languages—the window on language learning basically starts to close pretty dramatically— so this is the one thing parents need to jumpstart even before kids go to PreK," says Pimsleur Levine.

Experts recommend that the "optimal" period to learn a second language is from birth to puberty.
